Are Nordic batteries looking for a development engineer?

Nordic Batteries are seeking a development engineer for mechanical construction and system design. Factor 47 is operative! The pilot line where Nordic Batteries will produce their first battery modules is now officially open after the visit from former Prime Minister Erna Solberg where she cut the banner to kick it off.

Why do we need flow batteries?

Flow batteries offer backup power during grid outages, preventing costly disruptions to operations and revenue losses. The transition to renewable energy relies on widespread adoption of batteries and battery parks. We're here to provide reliable insights and knowledge to aid with this transition.

How do flow batteries work?

Flow batteries facilitate the integration of renewable energy sources by optimizing local consumption and feed-in of surplus to the power grid. Flow batteries can generate revenue by providing grid services such as frequency regulation, and earning returns on investment through service contracts with utilities.

Can flow batteries be charged and discharged on demand?

Flow batteries can be charged and discharged on demand, without taking State of Health (SoH) into consideration. Flow batteries exhibit a very high resilience to cycling, maintaining performance over numerous charge-discharge cycles with very little degradation in power rating or capacity.

Are flow batteries eco-friendly?

Flow batteries utilize an electrolyte consisting of environmentally friendly natural elements: vanadium, water, and acid. These components are non-toxic and non-flammable, making them safe for use in close proximity to animals and food production. Additionally, they are easily recyclable, contributing to their overall sustainability.
